

What remains of us when the body dies?

Gerald F. Rubisch
An Adventure into the Other Side
[Abenteuer Jenseits]
Near-death experiences and how life is lived afterwards

Goldmann Taschenbuch
256 pages
2 b/w illustrations
Format 12,5 x 18,3 cm
February 2013

Gerald F. Rubisch, after training as a craftsman and serving in government, for many years had his own psychological practice. During that time, he also devoted himself to adult education and gave seminars and workshops on psychological topics and naturopathic treatment. Today he has a philosophical practice for advising people on difficult life situations. He meets regularly with people who have had a near-death experience or other extraordinary consciousness experiences.

It is not so rare that people, after approaching the threshold of death or when they are considered dead medically, return to the physical body. They report impressive experiences: light manifestations, tunnel experiences, encounters with the deceased, or an instantaneous, panoramic view of their whole past life.

Gerald Rubisch has worked intensively with many people who have had a near-death experience. He has maintained contact with them in order to observe the changes that these experiences have brought about in their lives. He describes here not only fascinating journeys of consciousness that provide a view beyond the borders of earthly life. He also reports how near-death experiences often trigger a dramatic personal reorientation and how they can become a large challenge for a continuing existence in our physical world.

- With fascinating case studies
- Written by an expert on near-death experiences